Demonstration

The 24-hour record of 12,834 tons for the Berlin air lift is cheerful news for blockaded Berliners. It makes the United States and Britain proud of their airmen. And presumably it gives the blockading Russians something to think about.

As a demonstration, it is unsurpassed in the history of aviation—a feat as spectacular in its way as the air raids over Germany and Japan during the war. But its very success as a demonstration focuses attention on the most neglected fact about the air lift.

It is the costliest way to supply food, fuel and other necessities to a large group of human beings ever devised. Attempts to estimate what it has cost to date have been futile because too many elements of cost are involved. For example, how can fixed value be assigned to the weary hours of risk and skill spent by aviators, or how could the obsolescence of planes be determined?

The air lift has been necessary because of a Russian whim that has cost the Kremlin nothing. The whim created an emergency, and the emergency became the excuse for one of history's greatest and costliest demonstrations of power. The Berlin air lift has had tremendous effect on European thought. It has saved western Berlin from starvation. But how long must it continue—forever? Russia's whim has been quite a demonstration too, and it shows no signs of being terminated.

Wallace Beery

We can't be sure that the people who came in late understand why Wallace Beery was a success in the movies. His death after 36 years of film work is an excuse to point out something the late-comers may have missed.

In the early flicker-pictures there was no reality. Everything was staged and artificial. All the shadows were those of matinee idols, preposterously overdressed female charmers and clowns, like the Keystone Cops. Beery himself broke into the movies as a "Keystone funnyman."

But as Hollywood likes to point out, the movies grew from a novelty into one of the great arts. And Wallace Beery came in handy because he was one of the first actors to prove that a shadow on a screen need not be that of a matinee idol or a clown. His shadow was that of a tough guy with a heart of gold—and suddenly the movies realized that millions of people with gold hearts would like to see their main attribute portrayed on the screen. That's why Wallace Beery was a success. It's how he helped make film history. His fan club—whose members all are nearly past 40—regret his passing.

Phase III

If the calendar year were to be divided into its natural phases, instead of into months, this would be the beginning of phase III.

During phase I, which begins when Christmas is over and lasts until the first rustle of spring, the mood of winter lies heavily on everything. It is a season of toil and hardship.

Phase II begins when the promise of spring diverts attention from winter and generates hope of brighter days to come. This may happen as early as February—as it did this year. Or it may be postponed until well past the middle of March.

In phase III, the hope of brighter days to come is transformed into reality. Leaves, flowers and grass are fresh and brilliant. They are better day by day, an evolution that has a powerful impact on the morale of human beings. The world never seems more wonderful than it seems during phase III.

Later, phase IV will find the world in the full maturity of summertime. It is the harvest season, when "the living is easy." Then phase V is the season of decline; there is the premonition of autumn, to be followed by winter. Then comes autumn itself, then winter. Of them all, phase III is probably the best.

Do It Right

The issue about whether to patch up the White House once more and pass it along to posterity, or whether to build a new White House may reach congress after the Easter recess.

The number of those who think a new white house would be better than a patched-up building is growing. What started out to be a minority dissent to a costly rebuilding project may become a patriotic movement to create a permanent presidential mansion.

The existing white house is 150 years old. The cornerstone was laid in 1792, but it was 1800 before John and Abigail Adams moved in. Fourteen years later, the British took Washington and the building was gutted. It was then that it became the "White House"—from the white paint which covered the smoke-stained Virginia sandstone of the exterior walls.

From 1814 to the present, the White House has been patched. It has been worn out with patching. To patch it again, it is estimated, would take upward of $10,000,000 for a complete job of patchwork. A new building of steel and marble, designed exactly like the old one, could be put up for much less than $10,000,000—and posterity could quit worrying about patchwork for a few generations. Meanwhile, those present would have no objection to saving a few million dollars by doing something right.

AN exceptional opportunity for the demonstration of sound character, responsibility, fidelity and other characteristics of stability, good sense, patience and endurance, may be the outstanding culmination of this day.

The riotous urge to "fly off the handle," rush headlong and turbulently into dangerous, rash and ungovernable actions, may result in physical dangers, injuries, accidents and a range of destructive and regrettable deeds, with hazards to life, limb and possessions.

Clear vision, controlled action, with a calm pause for reflection—affecting inner feelings and emotions, may save the day from calamity and grief. Excellent prospects are in jeopardy.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may find themselves in a situation in which their affairs are benignly assured of a constructive, tangible and concrete demonstration of talents, skills, character and all round sterling qualities, for building a future, with stability, growth and security.

Thus, by their own shrewd and eager efforts at working for basic and long-range developments, by diligence, perseverance, responsibility and exceptional "know how." Yet all this could be definitely and irrevocably ruined, undermined, defeated by some wild, impetuous and unreasoned rush to fly into "tantrums"—to even viciously "upset the apple cart." Irrational, emotional, vindictive or vengeful conduct could frustrate all hopes and efforts at salvaging worthwhile prospects. This might be due to illness, accident.

Preparing For An Operation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Recovery from operation is quicker and more sure today than ever before in the history of medicine. This is due not only to advances in surgical technique but also to our better understanding of what can be accomplished by pre-operative preparation and post-operative care.

Today, where operation is not a matter of emergency, much attention is given to the matter of putting the patient in the best possible condition in advance of surgery.

Diet is of great importance. It should not only correct any deficiencies but also supply a reserve of the materials which aid healing.

One of the diets successfully prescribed gives about 3 1/2 ounces of protein daily from such foods as meat, milk, and eggs, plenty of vitamin C, and between 2000 and 3000 calories or heat units.

Quart of Milk
The diet, for example, may include one quart of milk, two servings of lean meat, fish, chicken, or liver; one or more eggs; cheese; two vegetables, one green and one yellow; two fruits, one citrus or a tomato, and whole-grain or enriched bread and cereals.

Prior to operation, it is also important to eliminate, insofar as possible, any bronchial or nasal infection and to get rid of decayed teeth. These things are important in preventing complications affecting the lungs or the salivary glands. Treatment with penicillin vapor to overcome infection in the nose or bronchial tubes is often helpful.

As a rule, the patient who has an operation, must use a bed pan and urinal following operative procedures, for several days at least. It is suggested that practice in using the bed pan and urinal at home prior to going to the hospital will reduce the need for enemas or the passage of a catheter into the bladder to eliminate the secretions.

If it is necessary for the patient to remain in bed for a time prior to operation, it is a good idea to keep the limbs mobile by exercises.

Drs. Zollinger and Arts recommend that for two or three days before admission to the hospital, the patient take a dose of mineral oil, by mouth, each day. One of the sulfa-drugs is given before intestinal surgery.

Following the operation, good care is again necessary in order to speed recovery. The same type of diet used prior to operation is employed in most cases, depending, of course, upon the type of operation carried out. The patient should regain his ordinary eating habits just as rapidly as possible.

After an abdominal operation walking up and down stairs is, as a rule, permitted by the second week, but heavy lifting should be avoided for two months. Moderate exercise is permitted and light work may be allowed in from three to six weeks.

Increase Hay And Pasture Acreage, Ohio Farmers Told

By BRUCE BOSSAT
WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—In the interest of conservation, Ohio farmers are urged to step up their hay and pasture acreage about 32 per cent, add another 11 per cent to lands now in small grains and cut slightly their corn-soybean acreages. These recommendations are made by the agricultural department in a comprehensive soil conservation study of corn belt and lakes states. The survey estimated that Ohio farmers could safely put an additional 10 to 15 per cent of their potential cropland under cultivation without damage to the soil. The department reported that the state has some 13,920,000 acres suitable for cropland and another 4,188,000 for pasture and forest. Of the 13,920,000 acres rated fit for crops in Ohio, 8,237,000 are not considered in need of supporting soil conservation practices such as contour farming, strip-cropping and terracing. Of the remaining 5,682,000 acres, the department estimated 1,624,000 should be contour farmed, 3,502,000 strip-cropped and 536,000 acres terraced in Ohio.

For acreage not thus treated, the department recommended rotation of crops to maintain soil fertility and prevent disastrous erosion. It of course favors rotation on all croplands.

Ohio appears to stand in a somewhat better position than many mid-western states in the matter of need for the terracing and contour farming.

Of the eight states studied, Ohio has the smallest amount of land recommended for terracing. Only 11.7 per cent of its cropland is considered to need contour farming, while big farm states like Iowa and Minnesota are reported to require such methods on 23 per cent of their arable soils.

But because it has many hilly rolling sections, Ohio does need a relatively high proportion of strip-cropping to block erosion. The survey estimated that 25 per cent of all Ohio cropland should be cultivated by the strip method.

This compared with 40 per cent recommended for Wisconsin, 16 per cent for Michigan, 13 per cent for Minnesota, 11 per cent for Iowa and nine per cent for Illinois. The survey cautioned particularly against Ohio and other states increasing the amount of cropland sowed to row crops like corn and soybeans.

"As row crops usually are most conducive to soil erosion, the maximum proportion of the cropland that can safely be planted to row crops is of major importance," said the report.

In Ohio, this maximum is fixed at 42.74,000 acres, a little more than one per cent below present estimated acreages in such crops.

The department said that less than a fourth of the land in the rougher areas of eastern Ohio ought to be in corn and soybeans. The survey suggested that Ohio

Safety Pin-Up

It's pin-up time in Texas with the 100th anniversary of the invention of the safety pin. So Margaret Litteral helps point up the fact as she lolls in El Paso sunshine. The safety pin was invented in 1849 by Walter Hunt of New York, who sold his patent for $400.

farmers ought to have some 5,833,000 acres in hay and pasture. It proposed that 1,254,000 acres to be planted in alfalfa meadow for three or more years, that 3,411,000 be in clover for two years and another 1,168,000 acres in clover for one year. In addition, careful use of lime potash and phosphate fertilizers is urged as a supplement to other soil-saving practices.

To those farmers who might be worried over possible losses resulting from a switch to hay crops from marketable cash crops like corn and soybeans, the department pointed out:

"Alfalfa hay and good grass-alfalfa hay mixtures are usually about equal to corn in total feed furnished per acre."

But it conceded that other types of hay would yield only slightly more feed than do small grains.

The department concluded, however, that widespread adoption of its recommended program for Ohio and other mid-western states would greatly increase total grain production through improvement of soils.

Lisbon Motorist Draws 30-Day Jail Sentence

Alliance Man Heading Gold Mine Expedition

MESA, Ariz., April 18—(UP)—Eight men equipped with treasure maps and "scientific know-how" headed into the rugged Superstition mountains today in search of the fabulous lost Dutchman gold mine. Scores of persons have died in the search for the almost legendary mine, said to be the world's richest. But Merrick Lewis, Alliance, O., a sophomore at the University of Arizona in Tucson, said he hoped months of careful preparation would enable his group to get through 170 miles of the wildest country in Arizona. They left here yesterday.

"At least we hope to find an explanation for the deaths of many of our predecessors," Lewis said.

The party shrugged off a legendary Apache Indian curse on any white person invading the area, the curse dates back 80 years to a massacre in which Apaches wiped out 400 men and 1,000 mules sent into the mountains for gold.

Lewis' party included Paul Bayer, New York and A. T. Le Ance, Chicago.

Oldtimers say the secret of the mine's location was lost forever with the death years ago of Jacob Waltz, the lost Dutchman.

Ireland Belongs To Irish Again

DUBLIN, Ireland, April 18—(AP)—Ireland belongs to the Irish again. After one minute past midnight the British Dominion of Eire became the sovereign republic of Ireland.

Bells pealed, cannons roared, rifle salutes were fired and hundreds of thousands of Irishmen danced and sang in the streets. There were lumps in their throats and tears in their eyes as they looked into the skies where piercing searchlights shone on the free flag of white, orange and green fluttering in the Easter night.

"Na Poblacht Abui!"—Gaelic for "Up The Republic!"—they cried. That republic covers 26 of the stated Isle's 32 counties. The six northern counties voted in February to stay with Great Britain. But thousands of Ulstermen came south to help celebrate.

Even King George VI, who has relinquished all claim to be Ireland's ruler, sent a telegram of congratulations to his newly-free former subjects.

The 24-hour celebration will end at midnight as two and one half million citizens of the new republic echo:

"It was a great day for the Irish!"

4 Teams See Action Today As Majors Begin Season

Six Team Race Seen Coming In National; Other Battle Between Tribe And Red Sox

NEW YORK, April 18—(AP)—The big league baseball season opens today with prospects of a six-team jamboree in the National and a Boston-Cleveland race in the American.

Only four teams see action this afternoon in the first of the double opening programs, but all 16 will be busy tomorrow—the first full schedule day.

President Harry Truman, an ambidextrous first ball pitcher, will be present to watch Washington tangle with the Philadelphia A's in the customary Griffith stadium opener a day before the rest of the American league.

A crowd of about 31,000 is expected.

After the President does his work, Rube Bresser, who will shoulder the job of trying to pitch Washington to victory. He will be opposed by Dick Fowler of the A's.

Boston also gets a special opening-day for its National league Championship game. Tomorrow is Patriots' day in Boston. That always calls for a doubleheader. As the Braves did not want to open with a double, they received permission for an early start with the improved Philadelphia Phils.

Johney Sain, 24-game winner for the '48 champs, will oppose the Veteran Ken Heintzelman at Braves field, where the World Series ended in a Boston defeat last Oct. 11. Some 15,000 are expected.

Most of the experts, and managers, too, think the Braves are in for a tough battle from Brooklyn, Pittsburgh and St. Louis but only Cincinnati and Philadelphia are counted out.

Manager Lou Boudreau's Cleveland Indians will lead with Bobby Feller, against the St. Louis Browns and Ned Garver at Sportsman's park tomorrow in their first game.

The Boston Red Sox, eager to get away to a better start than last year, pry off the lid at Philadelphia against the Athletics. Joe Dabson of the Sox will oppose Lou Briesie.

Ed Lopat, the chunky southpaw who has a rep as a slow starter, gets the opening assignment at the Yankee stadium tomorrow against Sid Hudson, whose spring work for Washington has been outstanding.

The stadium crowd of some 50,000 probably will be tops for the nine openers. It is expected that the two-league total today and tomorrow will be about 280,000.

Detroit may match the Yankees' 50,000 when Hal Newhouser opposes Chicago's Al Gettel or Randy Gumpert in Red Roofs' managerial debut.

After the Phils-Braves opener today, the National league swings into a full schedule tomorrow with New York at Brooklyn, Pittsburgh at Chicago, St. Louis at Cincinnati and the doubleheader between the Phils and Braves.

CAPOT SHOWING MAY HAVE EARNED A DERBY CHANCE

Horse Makes Fine Effort To Nose Out Slam Bang At Havre De Grace

NEW YORK, April 18—(AP)—Capot came back from Maryland today after polishing off five rivals in the Chesapeake stakes, prepared to meet up with Olympia and others in the classic Wood memorial Saturday at Jamaica.

Unless all signs fail, the affair between the No. 1 and No. 2 Kentucky Derby future book favorites should be something to watch.

Capot, pride of the Greentree stable, scored one of the most sensational victories since the Chesapeake was inaugurated in 1920 by nosing out Slam Bang in the event at Havre De Grace Saturday.

It was a hard earned verdict, but Trainer John Gaver said Capot thrives on heavy duty, and needs plenty of work before making his bid in the Derby May 7 at Louisville.

Olympia, Fred W. Hooper's three-year-old speedster, has been taking things easy since April 9 when he racked up a seven lengths decision in the experimental handicap No. 2 at Jamaica.

Just for comparison, Olympia romped out in front all the way in that mile and one sixteenth breeze under Jockey Eddie Arcaro. He was clocked in 1:44 2/5 and Eddie never laid the whip on his sleek bay hide.

Toronto Ted Atkinson, however, had to call on all of his riding skill to steer Capot home on top at Havre De Grace. The time there was 1:45 3/4 and the Greentree galloper just made it in the final jumps after he and Slam Bang slugged it out all the way around the track in a race that warmed the hearts of 16,477 customers half frozen by a chill wind.

The two horses traded the lead three times before Capot finally moved in front in the final 30 yards to win the first prize of $24,550. He had been made the 7 to 10 favorite and paid $4.40 for $2.

King Ranch's Swap Out was third, only a length and a half back of the battling leaders and at one time looked as if he might move in and clean up if the others faltered. He still may have earned a Kentucky trip though.

Waiting for the Yankee Clipper

With Yankee slugger Joe DiMaggio out of action for an indefinite period, his uniform with the big "5" was hanging in the locker room for him when the New Yorkers returned to Yankee Stadium. Joe was in Baltimore receiving treatment for a recurring heel injury at Johns Hopkins hospital.

Triangular Meet Here On Tuesday

The first track meet of the season—a three-way affair between Salem, East Liverpool and Boardman—will be a 4 p. m. event at Reilly stadium Tuesday.

Salem's squad, led by eight returning lettermen, figures as early favorite in the event, but Boardman, as usual, expects a strong team this season.

Fourteen events will be run off at Reilly tomorrow, Fred Cope announced today.

The meet tomorrow opens an active season in Salem, one that features four major meets at the Reilly stadium track, reputedly one of the finest in northeastern Ohio.

STRANAHAN TIES LOCKE; PLAYOFF TO BE PLAYED

Toledo Amateur Limping From Injury As He Faces Britisher

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., April 18—(AP)—Amateur Frank Stranahan walked with a limp today as he tied off against Professional Bobby Locke in an 18-hole playoff for the Cavalier specialists golf tournament championship.

The Toledo, O., star injured his left foot in one of yesterday's rounds when he slipped and fell on a hillside. His foot was swollen last night. Stranahan said he did not know how the injury would affect his game, but it was not regarded as serious.

Stranahan and Locke finished the regulation 54-hole tournament yesterday in 201 strokes. Six under par. The South African pro played the most consistent golf throughout the tournament. After carding a 67 Friday, he got a 68 yesterday morning and a 66 in the afternoon. Stranahan led after the first 18 holes with a 64, slipped to a 72 in yesterday's pre-lunch round, and came back with an afternoon 65.

Regardless of who is today's victor, Locke is certain to be a winner financially. He got $1,500 for finishing first among the 19 professional competing and collects 50 per cent of today's gate receipts.

Second and third place money yesterday was divided by Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco. They tied with 203. Each collected $800. A 203 by Dick Metz, Cavalier professional, was good for fourth place money of $700. Johnny Palmer, of Badin, N. C., and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, of Richmond, Va., picked up $550 each after posting 205's.

A Salem entry—Cooties Big Five—made its way into the finals of the Sharon, Pa., independent tournament Saturday, only to lose 71-46 to a potent Akron Shulan outfit, the new tourney champions.

Imburgia nipped 16 and Payer 11 in the evening battle as Carl Cicciozzi racked up 12.

PROVIDENCE TAKES HOCKEY LOOP TITLE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 18—(AP)—The Rhode Island Reds reigned as American Hockey league champions today for the first time in nine years.

The Reds, coached by fiery Terry Reardon who was noted for his spirit and fight while with the Boston Bruins, clinched a great comeback by defeating the Hershey Bears, 4-2, in the seventh and deciding game at the auditorium last night.

The high-scoring Providence entry, which ran away from the field in the league's eastern division during regular season play, came back to win three straight games after spotting Hershey a 3-1 lead.

The Reds wasted no time in going after last night's game and possession of the league's Calder cup. They nipped all their scoring into the first period and then held off repeated Hershey drives.

Tribe Speeds To St. Louis Opener

ST. LOUIS, April 18—(AP)—Cleveland's World Champion Indians sped here by train today for their season opener tomorrow with the St. Louis Browns.

A crowd of some 15,000 was expected to see the two clubs swing into action. Bob Feller, whose opening day pitching for the Tribe is almost traditional, will face Ned Garver, the Browns' 23-year-old right-hander.

The Champions ended their exhibition schedule on a weak note yesterday, taking an 8 to 3 lacing from the Giants in New York. It left Cleveland with a slim 8 to 7 advantage for its spring series with the New Yorkers.

The 10,000 customers, however, boosted the Tribe's spring attendance record to 243,904 for 35 games. A mark of 225,000, set by the New York Yankees in 1946, was broken by the Indians Saturday.

PREDICT WEATHER YEAR IN ADVANCE

By FRANK CAREY AP Science Reporter

WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—Weather predictions for 12 months in advance are possible for any city, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, famed sun expert of the Smithsonian institution, reported today. He bases the system on periodic fluctuations in the heat radiation of the sun.
Abbot disclosed a near-perfect record for predicting cool and warm days—by actual dates—in the nation's capital during 1948, and said the method could be applied to any other local area in the world.

He's already got his dates lined up for 1949 and predicts, among other things, a relatively cool Fourth of July for Washington and a relatively warm Christmas—for your information in case you're planning a visit here.
Abbot's present report concerns temperature variations only. But he also has worked out a similar solar method of forecasting the likelihood of rain or fair weather on specific dates a year ahead of time.
(Asked months in advance by the Associated Press to give a forecast on the Roosevelt and Truman inaugural days in 1944 and 1948 respectively, Abbot predicted fair weather—and scored perfectly in both cases.)

Here's what Abbot did in 1948 about Washington temperatures:
In January of that year, he selected 55 specific dates—four or five for each month—when he said the temperature would drop to a minimum and then start rising again. Between the "cold days," he predicted, there would be warmer days averaging 7.1 degrees higher.

Two suits—50.00—four times as wonderful, because they make four costume changes—with just a switch of the jackets and skirts (Good Housekeeping shows three of these suits making a wardrobe of nine costume changes!) Choose one Sacony that's soft and sweet, another that's simply basic—one that's long-sleeved, another that's short-sleeved. Pick two wonderful colors—from frosty white, gentle pastels, polished darks. Then, let yourself go—on and on. You can count on Sacony suits to look spanking fresh, because wonderful wool-and-rayon Palm Beach is ever-crisp, ever-cool even when the sidewalk sizzles. followed by a drop to another minimum.

Then he locked his predictions in a safe.

Early this year the safe was opened by the director of the Smithsonian's astrophysical observatory and the predictions were checked with the actual weather record of the U. S. weather bureau.

Out of the 55 "minima" predicted, said Abbot, 48 dates had lower temperatures than others intervening between them. The average excess of the warmer days was 6.96 degrees, against 7.1 degrees predicted.

GOVERNORSHIP NOT FOR BRICKER IN 1950

WHEELING, W. Va., April 18—(AP)—Senator John W. Bricker says he will not be a candidate in the Ohio gubernatorial race in 1950.

The Columbus Republican labeled as "untrue," a rumor he will seek another term as Ohio's chief executive.

The senator was interviewed by newsmen as he arrived to address the traditional Maundy Thursday services of the Scottish rite.

"I understand," Bricker said, "that a columnist made this forecast not so long ago and linked Senator Taft's name with it. Neither of us has ever discussed such a thing. Again, it's untrue."

Bricker served three terms as Ohio's governor, from 1939 to 1945. The former chief executive was elected to the senate in 1946.

Rumors Heard

Recent rumors in Washington reported Bricker would again seek the governorship of Ohio.

The rumors held that he would return to his native state in the hope of building strength for the Republicans in the Presidential race in 1952.

One report said Bricker, a strict party follower, had been asked by national GOP officers to make the personal sacrifice for the party.

After denying the rumors that he would run for governor, Bricker predicted there is no chance of federal taxes being increased at this time.

"We are going through a price-leveling process that is healthy," Bricker said. "Autos are on the market again; steel production and sales are establishing a satisfying equilibrium. Clothing, for instance, is nearing a reasonable price level."

Ohio's senator predicted defeat for several of President Truman's proposals. He said the President's suit is for boys and girls' ism" even among his own followers.

The presidential-sponsored bills which have been approved, Bricker added, have met with only half-hearted cooperation.

Carrier-Based Planes Fly Across Country

WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—Two Navy bombers have flown across the country non-stop after taking off from an aircraft carrier.

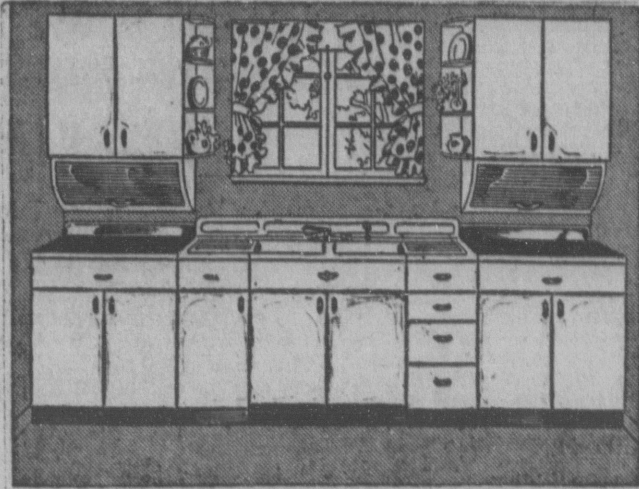

Ten hours after they were launched from the carrier Midway in the Atlantic ocean April 7, the pair of twin-engine PV2 Neptunes reached the Pacific, the Navy said. They finally landed at Moffett Field, Calif., after cruising on a training exercise for three more hours.

The two planes took off with enough fuel for 23 hours in the air but carried no bomb load, real or simulated.

The Neptune holds the world's long-distance non-fueling record of 11,000 miles, set on a flight from Australia to Ohio.

Seek Perfection For Interior Air Treatment

Comfortable - Healthful Living Sought For Time Spent Inside

With the average American spending more than half his lifetime in his home, the science of providing for complete indoor comfort has become an important phase of scientific industrial development. In addition the providing labor-saving appliances and luxurious sedentary life has turned its attention to the task of properly conditioning the air within the home in order that the occupants may enjoy complete comfort as well as healthful living conditions.

For years, home owners and occupants of all forms of shelter have been concerned simply with the heating and cooling of the air within the structure. It had been thought that as long as folks were warm in winter and cool in summer, air conditions within the home were satisfactory.

Extensive research by members of the nation's warm air heating and air conditioning industry has proved, however, that there are actually seven factors of air treatment necessary to maintain proper air conditions which will afford the best in indoor comfort.

THE NORMAL temperature of the human body serves as the limiting factor against which all home warming or cooling mechanism are designed. Normal body temperature is about 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. Each human body has a distinct temperature relation point with the temperature of the surrounding air at which point the body feels comfortable.

As variations from the comfort level become greater, bodily health can be affected. Lower temperatures cause susceptibility to respiratory diseases. Higher temperatures cause the blood to flow from internal organs to skin surfaces and thus may affect digestive process and heart action, cause fatigue and generally lower resistance to infection.

In addition to air heated or cooled to a satisfactory temperature, air containing a proper amount of water vapor has a direct bearing on the sensation of bodily comfort. An improper degree of humidity may cause excess drying out of mucous membranes which may result in colds, nasal irritations and coughing.

DIVERGENT DEGREES of humidity can also cause furniture to warp, shrink or fall apart, rugs and other fabrics to deteriorate. Clean air has been found to be an important factor of indoor comfort, both in regards to health as well as minimizing the housewife's cleaning chores.

Air containing considerable amounts of dirt, dust, smoke and pollen can be very harmful to the lungs and respiratory tracts and may pave the way for respiratory diseases such as colds, asthma and hay fever.

Most everyone has experienced a marked example of the discomfort of "stuffy" air in close quarters such as in clothes closets or confined attic space. This is because in addition to real conditions of temperature and humidity, air movement is most important in providing maximum indoor comfort. Air without circulation becomes stagnant air, causing a feeling of depression, listlessness and lassitude to the human body.

EVERY PERSON HAS at one time experienced discomfort through headaches and a feeling of suffocation from breathing stale air. Changes brought about by human beings occupying an enclosed space convert fresh air to stale air. Through breathing, oxygen is removed from the air and carbon dioxide is exhaled into the air. Odors resulting from the elimination of body wastes are transmitted from the body to the air; cooking odors and tobacco smoke contribute to air staling.

A simple remedy to eliminate stuffiness or staleness in indoor air is to open a window.

In addition to dust, lint and pollen, air serves also as a conveying medium for many types of bacteria. Bacteria may be launched into the air in microscopic droplets emitted by sneezing, coughing or even talking.

Partial prevention of air-borne bacteria is gained through filtering out the dust and lint which may carry these microbes.

Also sterilizing units for destroying air-borne bacteria are now being built into the modern type warm air winter air conditioning systems.

RANCH-TYPE SALEM HOME FEATURES STORAGE SPACE, NEW SMOKELESS FURNACE AND CONVENIENT EXTRAS

Exterior paint is yet to be applied, a few inside installations are to be made and the lot landscaped and then the new home of Samuel Rea, Jr., will make another attractive home in the Buckeye Circle area.

It is a six-room house with an attic for storage and a large basement. It is built along the ranch-type lines, much favored in present-day construction, and has a picture window, 12 feet in width, facing the street.

Wood siding was used for the exterior. It was placed over thick insulating sheathing.

A new type of smokeless coal furnace has been installed in the basement.

The furnace is thermostatically controlled.

Principal feature in the eyes of Mrs. Rea is the large amount of storage area and closet space. In a hall connecting the kitchen and a hall leading to the three bedrooms, an entire wall holds storage space. In the modern kitchen a small table has been attached at preschool age level to one wall for the convenience of Jack, age one-and-a-half years, and Joanne, age two-and-a-half years. A handy ironing board comes out of another wall. A door leads from the kitchen to the connecting garage.

The dinette is to be placed at one side of the large living room with cupboards yet to be built in this area.

In the living room is a generous brick-faced fireplace.

Oak flooring was installed throughout the home. Trimming, closet doors and other wood pieces are pine and will be painted or stained. Cross tinted plaster was used for the room interiors.

The house is 52 feet wide and was constructed in a "T" shape, thus producing varying depths. The lot is 70 x 152 feet.

Rea, local construction employee, did most of the building himself.

Paint Burning Is Tricky Job

Burning old paint off a house with blow torches is a tricky and dangerous job. It is resorted to sometimes when old paint is so badly scaled or "alligatored" that scraping won't suffice.

Responsible painters usually notify the home owner's insurance company when burning is to be tried. If the process results in fire, the painter is not liable for damages after such notification.

Burning should not be attempted except by experts, and not even then if there is as much as a suggestion of a crack in the siding. Sparks from the paint-burning jobs have been known to smolder for three or more days in the building paper that underlies clapboarding, before bursting out into flame and spreading through the walls.

RADIO OPENS DOORS

Automatic radio door openers for garages, operating from a button on the dash of an automobile, are now well established on the market. A second button in the house closes the doors and puts out the lights. The dashboard button in your car also turns on your house lights for you as you approach.

U. S. HAS EXPANDED ECONOMY, NOT INFLATION, REALTOR SAYS

Our expanding real estate economy is the best guarantee of continued high employment and high level of earnings, Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, says.

Discounting the contention of many that today's prices and wages are inflationary, Mr. Nelson pointed out that they indicate an expanded economy—an increase in production plants and volume of output to accommodate a larger population and a rising standard of living.

"Attempts to show that these prices and wages are inflationary mislead the public," he added. "They ignore the basis of inflation, which is shortage of goods at a time when there is active buying power to bid for scarce items. When the economy succeeds in expanding to increase production of goods, make things available to more people, and keep more people at work producing them, the result is the direct opposite of inflation. And that is what we have today."

Mr. Nelson explained that there will be a solid expansion in our real estate economy because:

Accommodating a population increase of 15 1/2 million—20 percent more than the total population of Canada—since 1940 will require greater use of real estate. This increase "is being felt most directly now in the new loads on our school systems and the resultant new demands for more land and buildings to educate the recent additions. It will be felt in demands for larger houses by their families, and still later in demands for additional housing as this generation matures and establishes its own homes."

New methods of financing stimulate a demand for homes that is unparalleled in our history. Mortgage insurance, long-term amortization of home-purchase debt, low interest rates, aids to cooperative home buying, and special financing for factory producers of housing and their distributors are relatively new in our economy.

Increased use of automobiles requires a greater use of real estate. This permits the car owner to use more land by commuting longer distances, makes possible the continued move to low density type of multiple dwellings with their greater use of land, encourages the trend to rural living by city workers, and requires more utilization of real estate for parking facilities, traffic ways, and automobile service establishments.

Trends to smaller households mean a demand for more housing per thousand of population. Declining size of the family and the movement toward more household maintenance by single persons and groups of single persons create this demand for more space per person.

Prefabrication, modular design, and improved site fabrication are making definite gains. They are just beginning to expand the market for homes.

"The building industry has always been looked to as a general stimulant to employment, industrial production and services," Mr. Nelson said, in explaining the relationship between the expanding real estate economy and the general economy. "This is the basis of Washington theories of holding public construction in abeyance during times of full employment so that it may go forward as an economic shot in the arm when general production and employment lag.

"The present shift to a buyer's market is a healthy development in our expanding real estate economy," he added. "Our economy is built on the theory that the customer is king. That is the essence of a competitive economy. It is the road we have always taken to better values and higher standards for the buying public."

GARAGES BOOST COST OF HOMES IN MODERN AGE

Some Build Car Ports, But Many Have Heat, Lights In Shelter

By DAVID J. WILKIE Associated Press Auto Editor

The automobile has added materially to the cost of the American home.

If you doubt this ask a neighbor who recently has had to have a garage erected or enlarged to house his modern model motor car.

Automobiles have played a distinct role in architecture. Perhaps their biggest influence was in the creation of the garage that now is part of the typical home.

Cars Kept In Barns Back in 1910, when an automobile cost almost as much as an average house, the family car was housed in a converted barn or shed. Today its electrically lighted garage, heated throughout the winter, fitted with delicately balanced overhead doors, sometimes automatically operated from a key post in the driveway, or from a mere radio signal from the car, has become an integral part of the modern home.

However, there are some parts of the country where garages as such are the exception rather than the rule. Where temperatures are usually mild and the climate dry, a "car port," or simply a space with a covered top and no sides, is considered sufficient for housing the family vehicle over night.

The car port seems to have possibilities for spreading. There are thousands of apartment dwellers whose cars are never put under cover. The vehicles withstand the weather as well as the business man's car which is in the open 15 hours or more every day.

Buy Car Before Home Many persons, particularly the younger age group, want to buy a car before they buy a home. This is becoming increasingly the rule with houses built in outlying sections. Perhaps if this were not true, the car industry, relying largely upon installment buying of its product, would not be nearly as large as it is today.

All in all, however, the automobile and the house are very closely related. In the transportation it provides, the automobile has made it possible for millions of persons to live in comfort away from congested sections.

New Increases In Rent May Spur Home Buying

By T. E. APPELEGATE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK—There's a sleeping demand for homes that could stir the nation's greatest housing boom, says a New York mortgage banker.

George W. Warnecke, president of the firm bearing his name, said the buyers would be middle-income families now in rent-controlled quarters.

It will work this way, he said, in an interview:

When once again it becomes cheaper to buy or build than to rent, there will be a rush into the home market by tenants who have not bought during recent years because they enjoyed "bargain" rents.

This will occur "the minute rents return to their proper economic values." Mr. Warnecke believes that level will not be reached until rent controls end.

Before the war, he said, the normal market for new homes depended largely on men in their middle or late thirties, with expanding families, settled in their business career and possessors of stable incomes—excellent credit risks.

Many of these men now are "sitting tight," but are finding their rental quarters a bit crowded.

Warnecke doesn't regard them as a "lost generation" in the housing market. Instead, he says, they will seek homes of their own as soon as it becomes economic for them to do so.

And their impact on home building then will be doubled, he points out, because another group will be reaching that status as to age, income and family which makes them prospective buyers.

Meanwhile, lack of available rental housing is driving into the home market younger men and war veterans. In many cases, Warnecke says, they are not ready to assume the responsibilities of home ownership. Usually they are not established in their line of work, unsure whether they want to settle down in a particular community or what size house they'll eventually need. Overtime payments or special bonuses may make up part of their annual income, the future size of which is problematical.

Normally, he points out, these young men would occupy the rental units now held by an older group. And home acquisition by the older men would make available the rental space the owners need and prefer at this stage.

Some idea of the potential buying power of the tenant group referred to may be had from a recent statement of the Construction Industry Information Committee.

Melvin H. Baker, committee chairman, said families in the $5,000-plus income bracket in 1948 paid an average of only $45.33 a month for rent.

Since 1940, he reported, some 3,000,000 tenant families have moved up into the $5,000-plus range, but they have not moved into the market for new or better housing as would have been normal in the past.

Recently there has been considerable finger-pointing in the house production and marketing field.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards reported its semi-annual survey showed down payments of 30 to 50 percent required and mortgage money not readily available in one out of three cities studied. Then the Mortgage Bankers Association of America issued a study it said showed the market for mortgages was good and had expanded considerably in recent months.

Officers of the MBA and of the National Association of Home Builders accused the federal government of discouraging lending institutions from extending construction loans or permanent mortgage credit.

Is mortgage money tight? Warnecke says if the proposed loan is to finance 110 percent of value, the people who shouldn't be buying, the answer is yes. But he says bankers and insurance companies are ready to make adequate funds available for sound loans.

Here is why he says lenders are insisting on appraisals sometimes considered too low by realtors and builders:

While the seller of a property takes his profit and is through with the deal, the mortgage lender is in it for perhaps 20 years, and will make a profit only if the value of the property is fairly stable for that period.

Present declines in construction costs are proof that these do not stay constant; the lender must base his risk on an "average" value for the long term.

Today's costs, Warnecke believes,

Use Factory Type Lights In Home

Washday won't seem half so trying with plenty of good light over your laundry tubs. Those same fluorescent lights did so much to speed production in factories during the war are right at home in the laundry or basement workshop.

A new type of portable fixture with both two and four 20-watt lamps is now available for use in temporary installations. In fact, many families who own their own homes like these adapter-type units as they're called because they need only to be attached to your present outlet.

If your tubs are long or if you enjoy woodwork as a hobby, naturally you'll want a permanent fixture with two 40-watt lamps installed. General Electric lighting specialists suggest that 4500 degree white lamps be used in the laundry to give clear work light which will help you see spots more easily.

are above that average, although slowly approaching it.

"Lenders have taken a more realistic view than the government has on rental housing," he said. "They are squeezing the 'speculative water' out of the rental picture. Because of this, today the lender can make a much safer investment in real estate than he could a year ago."

He explained this further: Today buyers are purchasing rental properties with the idea of getting a steady return on invested money, instead of figuring on a quick turnover at 10 to 15 percent profit.

As a result, they are looking at long-term prospects. "I think lenders who take a realistic attitude in making loans are helping to put the general economy on a sounder footing," Warnecke said.

Rural Areas Need Better Plumbing

For the home beyond the water mains, an electric water system is the means of obtaining complete sanitary comfort and plumbing convenience.

Realizing the great demand for running water under pressure in suburban areas, manufacturers, dealers and power companies are sponsoring a National Water Systems Month in May. This special promotion period is intended to show these outlying homeowners the benefits of a properly designed and installed electric water system.

Running water brings the entire list of big city plumbing advantages—bright, new bathrooms, kitchen and laundry rooms, automatically heated domestic water, sanitary sewage disposal methods, and labor-saving equipment easy to install and service.

One of the objectives of National Water Systems Month is to show suburban homeowners the economy of having a high quality water system. A properly installed pressure main will pump one thousand gallons of water through piping for about five cents. Longlasting pumps, tanks and piping of good quality are available which need almost no attention for years except for an occasional oiling or replacement of a washer.

AVERAGE RENT OF $5,000 CLASS DOWN FROM '40

Incomes Have Risen, But Families Remain In Low Cost Housing

U. S. families with incomes of $5,000 a year or more now pay 37 percent less rent on the average than did families in this income group in 1940, Melvin H. Baker, chairman of the Construction Industry Information Committee, says.

"This is one of the striking abnormalities of the postwar rental housing situation," Mr. Baker said. "The median rent for this income group in 1948 was $45.38, according to a Federal Reserve Board survey, where as in 1940 it was estimated at $72.10 by the Federal Housing Administration."

"This does not mean that the rent for the individual family has gone down so drastically. It is explained by the fact that many of the 3,000,000 tenant families which have moved up into the $5,000-plus bracket since 1940, as incomes have increased, still are paying relatively low rents for their homes."

"Bargain Rates" "In effect, rent control has brought 'bargain rates' in housing to many of these wealthier families and they have not moved into the market for new or better housing. In keeping with their increased incomes, as they usually have done in the past."

"Families in the $5,000-plus income bracket now are paying out only nine percent of their incomes for rent, because incomes have risen much more sharply than controlled rents. All non-farm tenant families were paying out only 12 percent of their cash incomes for rent in 1948 according to a Federal Reserve Board survey, whereas earlier government surveys showed they were paying 17.6 percent in 1935-36 and nearly 16 percent in 1941."

"Of families earning $5,000 a year or more, 39 percent pay rentals of less than $40 a month and 56 percent pay less than $50 a month. In contrast, only 11 percent of the $5,000-plus families paid less than $40, and only 20 percent paid less than $50, in 1940.

Families Not Moving

"This situation ties in with the surprisingly small amount of movement of families from one dwelling unit to another since 1940. In spite of the great migrations made necessary by war activities, the very high number of new families formed since the outbreak of war, the prosperity which would ordinarily have promoted much movement of families, and the all-time record-breaking home construction of this decade, proportionately fewer families changed their place of residence during the seven years from 1940 to 1947 than during the shorter period of five years from 1935 to 1940."

"In effect, there has been one-third less moving each year in the present period than in the pre-war period by families moving to another home in the same county. This is significant because, when a family moves to another nearby residence the move is usually made strictly for housing reasons, whereas when a move is made to a different county or state it is usually because of a change of employment."

"The relatively lower rentals paid by the more well-to-do tenant families, as their incomes have increased, coupled with the trend for tenants to remain in the same rental accommodations, reflect the unprecedented rigidity which we now have in the rental market."

Asphalt Roofing Production High

Shipments of asphalt roofing amounted to nearly 77,000,000 squares in 1948, according to the Department of Commerce. A square of roofing is enough to cover 100 square feet.

Excluding saturated felt used in built-up roofing for flat roofed buildings, shipments increased 76 percent in 10 years and 30 percent since 1941, peak production year before the war. Department of Commerce figures also show that asphalt roofing has been meeting 84 percent of the entire United States' roofing requirements.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics computes the wholesale price of asphalt, strip shingles for December, 1948, at only 5.7 percent more than in 1926. Average increase for all commodities was 62.3 percent and for all building materials, 102 percent.

Production in 1949 is expected to be sufficient to meet a heavy demand for back repair and new construction.

CAN OPENERS BUILT IN

Among kitchen accessories that can be built in the wall is a can opener. A chromium finished panel opens, lowering a crank-operated can opener into position where a quick whirl cuts off the lid of the can and holds the lid, preventing it from sinking into the food.

Wet Surfaces Ruin Paint Job

A house can be painted any time it is dry and the weather is not too cold.

Many painters warn against painting when the temperature is below 50. The paint becomes too thick to form a good bond and the paint can freeze. If the temperature drops to freezing before the paint is thoroughly dry, the coating will powder and brush off. The Western Paint Association warns that paint will not hold its wet wood. Painting should be done only when the surface of the siding is thoroughly dry. Some painters recommend at least four days for wood, brick, stucco or other absorbent materials to dry after a rain.

Don't paint in a misty atmosphere. Even after a fog, wait for a day of sunshine or drying winds.

Painters don't start work too early in the morning. They wait until the sun has dried up night dampness.

If You Have A Trade Mark, Show It, Is Macy's Idea

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, April 18—(UP)—The way W. Kingsland Macy looks at it, if you have a trade mark you might as well let folks know about it.

Macy, a Republican congressman from the first district of New York, wears his trade mark. It's a stiff collar, two inches high. The only one in congress.

The closest thing to it on Capitol Hill is the winged job sported daily by the dignified gentlemen from North Carolina. Sen. Clyde Rusk Hoge. The senator goes Macy one better by always wearing a swallow-tailed coat and a carnation in his buttonhole.

Macy, no imitator, says he's too smart for a swallow-tail and does not look very cute in a carnation. "But," he told me, "I have worn a high collar since I was a young man. It caused some comment after Scott collars came in and so I decided right then and there that if a man owned a badge—he ought to wear it. I think it got me some votes, too."

Macy (no imitator, I said) promoted the candidacy of Herbert Hoover when he was running for President. Everybody remembers Mr. H. in his high collar. He doesn't wear one any more, though. He shocked the folks at Philadelphia last summer at the Republican national convention when he pulled up to make a speech in a plain white shirt with a soft, roll-down collar. He talked just as nice as he ever did in an iron choker.

Unlike Hoover, Macy hitches his tie hard by his Adam's apple, a good inch under the gold collar button, which always shows. The former President always used to cover the button with the knot of his four-in-hand and often remarked in private that he felt "undressed" if he didn't.

Macy, who is 59, claims he has been wearing high collars longer than Hoover.

"Everybody thinks Hoover always did," he said. "That's wrong. But I always have."

The New York congressman buys his high neck pieces from Brooks Brothers in New York City—special made with round edges. The pointed ones jab him in the collar bone.

The collars are stiff as a board and about half as pretty. But Macy swears they are comfortable. That's for the record. But follow the representative home and the first thing he does when he gets the key out of the lock is to rip off his collar.

Says Truman May Go To People With Health Plea

WASHINGTON, April 18—President Truman probably will take his plea for a national health program directly to the people, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, said today. He will ask congress for it this week, the labor leader said.

Green was in a group which called on the President to present a report from a committee backing the President's compulsory health insurance program. The report contended that comprehensive voluntary insurance plans are blocked by "organized medicine's monopoly controls."

Taft Fights Against Socialized Medicine

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON, April 18—(UP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R) of Ohio declares that this country might as well face the fact that no people, as a whole, can get something for nothing.

"People can only be fooled into such a hope," Sen. Taft said in explaining why he will oppose the administration's $6,000,000-a-year medical insurance plan.

Sen. Taft, Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R) of New Jersey and Sen. Forrest C. Donnell (R) of Missouri have introduced an alternate proposal which would subsidize state health services in general with $280,000,000 a year as a starter. The subsidy would rise as high as about $43,000,000 annually. States would match federal contributions for development of voluntary health insurance plans, extension of medical and hospital facilities, hospital construction, subsidizing and increasing enrollment in medical schools and expanding local public health services.

In an interview with the United Press, Sen. Taft said the federal government must concern itself with the public's education, health, housing and security. But he warned against the something-for-nothing philosophy which he held to be the basic and unsound element of the welfare state.

"With welfare legislation and spending," Sen. Taft said, "the whole question is of doing it the right way. I am against the welfare state and I am against socialized or nationalized medicine. Organized charity to the whole population can destroy the freedom and character of the people and increase the power of the central government until Washington bureaus govern the daily lives of every family in the United States."

Canada Offers Bonus To Soldiers In U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—Canada is looking for "a few thousand" Americans who served in the Canadian armed forces. It wants to give them the benefits to which they are entitled, including cash.

The Canadian Department of Veterans Affairs has asked the aid of the Veterans Administration in trying to locate those who have not been paid.

The Canadians say that "a very large number" of Americans have been paid and Canada wants to clear up the balance.

Every veteran of the Canadian forces is entitled to a war service gratuity and a re-establishment credit. The gratuity is $750 for each 30 days service in the Western hemisphere and $15 for each 30 days service overseas. The re-establishment credit, about equal to the gratuity, may be used by veterans living outside Canada only for veterans' insurance.

Look ahead - and you'll see Roadmaster!

LITERALLY or figuratively it still holds true.

That great and gracious carriage swinging past you, flashing its four gleaming Ventiports as it goes, what's that but a ROADMASTER?

And that car you've got your sights set on—the big, roomy, lively, sweet-riding thrill-maker you mean to own "some day"—what's that but this gorgeous travel-mate you see on the roads right now?

You can even go beyond that.

Look ahead—and you'll see that Buick has already met the growing trend toward more for your money.

On the liveliness of its time-proved valve-in-head power plant—on the unequaled smoothness of Dynaflo Drive—on the level-going luxury of its matchless ride, ROADMASTER doffs its bonnet to no one.

Yet look around, check the prices (including what's in them!) and you'll find that this one costs less than you think, gives more than you expect.

As for delivery—just drop in and get the facts. With factory production increasing, you may well find it another reason for getting a firm order in right now.

BUICK alone has all these features

Silk-smooth DYNAFLO DRIVE • FULL-VIEW VISION from enlarged glass area • SWING-EASY DOORS and easy access "LIVING SPACE" INTERIORS with Deep-Cradle cushions Buoyant-riding QUADRUFLUX COIL SPRING • Lively FIREBALL STRAIGHT-8 POWER with SELF-SETTING VALVE LIFTERS plus HI-POISED ENGINE MOUNTINGS • Low-pressure tires on SAFETY-SIDE RIMS • Cruiser-Line VENTIPORTS • DUREX BEARINGS, main and connecting rods • BODY BY FISHER

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER models.
